

Daniel Murariu, MD, MPH, MBA, FACS recently joined Athena Clinic in Honolulu, Hawaii.

He obtained his medical degree from Tulane University in New Orleans and completed general surgery at University of Hawaii, plastic surgery at University of Virginia and microsurgery fellowship at MD Anderson Cancer Center in Houston.

Previously while in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania he served as Director of Microsurgery and Lymphatic Surgery, and was a Clinical Associate Professor at University of Pittsburgh.

His main reconstructive interests lie in microsurgery, supermicrosurgery for lymphedema and robotic assisted reconstruction.